Search On For 2 Escapees

A search continues for two men who broke out of Milam County jail before dawn Thursday, using hacksaw blades to cut through bars on a north window.

The escapees were identified by Sheriff Carl Black as Lonceree McGowan, 31, of Milano and James Howard Williams, 26, of Thorndale.

The sheriff said the escape probably occurred sometime between 1:30 a.m. and 2:30 a.m. Thursday. The escape was discovered shortly before 7 a.m. when breakfast was being served, Black said.

The men escaped by sawing through two bars of a cell window on the second floor of the old jail with hacksaw blades, he said. Black does not know how the men got the blade.

"They cut through the bottom of two bars, bent one of them back and broke the other one off." he said.

McGowan has been convicted and sentenced to five years for forgery, Black said. McGowan is wanted on warrants in Bell County and was to be transferred to the Bell County jail, the sheriff said.

Williams was in jail after being charged with forgery and assault with attempt to murder, Black said

A new county jail is being built with completion hoped for early October. The old jail will be converted to a museum after the sheriff's office is moved into the new building.

This is to thank State Rep. Dan Kubiak, State Sen. Bill Patman and Secretary of State Mark White for their expertise in pre-briefings on upcoming elements in the general election, the 1975-76 legislative year and status of communications among the branches of Texas government and the media.

These are subjects important to the press, which is meeting in a Texas Press committee assembly in September.

It was a tough year for the Legislature sitting as a Constitutional Convention. The public never saw what they worked on for seven months. Sen. Patman is introducing a bill to bring the proposed constitution to a public vote in May, 1975, minus additions which, along with the proposal, failed approval by three votes.

Rep. Kubiak says the 1975 Legislature will be the "education session" requiring the House and Senate to review the queasy financial edifice of Texas public school finance. The Rockdale representative is chairman of the education committee of the Texas House.

Both voted for the final constitutional draft.

State Secretary White is interested in boosting a "get out the vote" campaign for the November general election. It would seem advisable in view of the failure in getting a constitutional proposal before the public.

The print media in Texas have played a central role in modern reform developments in Texas, beginning about 1970 with land commissioner Bob Armstrong's upset win over incumbent Jerry Sadler, who had been censured in the House and had roughed up a photographer in the land commissioner's office.

It was then the breaking story on Sharpstown, which further deposed a governor, a lieutenant-governor running for governor , an attorney-general, among others.

This Texas media coverage seemed to anticiapte Watergate revelations which deposed a president and indicted and / or convicted perhaps two dozen appointees in the Nixon Administration, including a former Texas governor.

One of the last of the enduring Texas officeholders, treasurer Jesse James, may find a tough race against an Amarillo Republican, Bob Holt, in the general election. Holt may be to James what liberal Democrat Armstrong was to Sadler.

Disaster Payments Due For County Farmers

"Don't plow it under." These emphatic words of local ASCS director Douglas Buck are directed to farmers whose farm program crops have been destroyed or damaged by drought in Milam County.

This is the first year in which ASCS is to make disaster payments to eligible farmers who have substantial losses in production of program crops because of natural disaster.

Buck said some grain farmers lost part or all of their crop but the biggest losses from the drought are to the county's cotton crop. He said perhaps 60 percent of the crop is being harvested this year.

Payments, which are channeled through the local ASCS office can be made only to those who signed up for the program before July 15 and who are certified by the ASCS office after they have made the proper application.

Producers who believe they may be entitled to disaster payments under the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 should notify the county ASCS office as soon as possible.

What they should not do, Buck said, is plow under or otherwise destroy evidence of the crop damage until specifically advised by the county ASCS office that they may do so. Official determinations must be made on the extent of loss.

"If a farmer believes that natural disaster has caused a substantial loss in yield of nis program crops, he should not destroy the crop residue. If his loss is partial and he harvests some or all of the crop, he should be ready to furnish evidence of the yield."Buck said.

"Most important of all, he should keep in touch with the county ASCS office," Buck added.

The local ASCS chief pointed out that disaster payments are intended only to provide some relief to farmers whose cropland is so affected by natural disaster that they receive little or no income from production of the crop.

Also, coverage extends only to planted acreage up to the historical allotment on each farm, not to acreage planted in excess of allotment.

Area Roundup

Crop Duster Crashes

A crop dusting plane belonging to Corpora Aerial Service crashed and burned Saturday morning east of the overpass near the Brazos River southwest of Hearne. The pilot said the machine stalled on the turn at a turning row, lost altitude and crashed in flames. He was not injured.

Freight Train Derails

A Missouri - Pacific freight train, headed north, was struck by a gravel truck west of Calvert and a reported 21 cars were derailed with 10 of these turning over. The truck driver failed to stop at the sound of the train whistle, saw the train, and tried to turn into a ditch near the tracks. The driver was not injured.

Miserly Yields Predicted

Williamson County farmers and ginners predict miserly yields from the King of the Blackland Prairies cash crops. Cotton will pose a minimum $3.25 million loss for local growers, the county agent estimated. The losses are due to the current drought.

Fisherman Reported Missing

Tragedy is feared in the report of a Caldwell man missing from a fishing trip on the coast. Earl Humphrey's car was found on Padre Island near a fish pass. All indications were that he had gone fishing in the surf. An all-out search is being conducted.

School Tightens Budget

McGregor school board adopted a belt-tightening budget of $771,341 at a special meeting and voted to assess taxes on the same basis as last year -- $1.50 per $100 at 50 percent market value. The present tax rate and percentage of valuation has remained the same since 1969.

No Funds For New Library

At a special meeting, Belton City countil agreed that there are not sufficient funds to build a new library. Further discussion has resulted in a land swap with a city bank, and relocation of the library building on an old commercial sity.

City Raises Water Rates

The city of Rosebud has decided that water rates should be raised $2 for the minimum charge, taking it to a total of $7. Taps for water are being raised from $100 to costs plus 10 percent. The city is faced with deficit spending, with prices for everything increasing.

Alcoa Renovation Moving Along

A three-year, multimillion dollar modernization program is moving along on schedule at Alcoa's Rockdale Work's, the company's and the nation's largest aluminum - making facility. About 200 people and seven contractors are on the site, according to Fred P. Bergeron, Texas area manager.

Alcoa's Central Texas plant, built during the Korean conflict and started up in 1952, employs some 1,800 people from 12 counties, with an annual payroll exceeding $25 million.

Major modernization, which began last year, involves carbon plant renovation and construction of a fifth carbon baking furnace, pollution control equipment at the carbon and power generation plants, computerization of potrooms and rebuilding several structures.

Bergeron estimates that construction employment will peak at about 300 in mid-1975. He said that number of workers will be needed through 1976.

Alcoa's Pittsburgh construction division, the general contractor, is concerned with material delivery, however. Tom Hormuth, construction division manager at Rockdale works. is especially concerned about pollution abatement equipment which accounts for over $10 million of the overall program. Foundation work has been completed and steel erection is under way at two locations for the abatement equipment.

Construction is expected to begin on the new carbon baking furnace around the first of the year as facilities needed to feed the system are scheduled to be completed. This additional furnace will enable refurbishing of the remaining four furnaces used to bake impurities out of carbon anodes used in the production of aluminum without a production cutback.

Construction personnel began pouring concrete last week for six petroleum coke storage tanks in another step to complete the carbon plant modernization. Over six million pounds will be poured around the clock through Friday to form the 92 - feet - high, 32-feet-in-diameter tanks.

Continuing Ed Offers 50 Courses

Expanded class offerings are planned for the Continuing Education program at Temple Junior College for 1974-75, according to Douglas Ferrill, director of Continuing Education and the Evening Division.

The expanded offerings, including more than a dozen new courses, are described in the Continuing Education class schedule for September and October. The Schedule is available now at TJC, Ferrill said.

TJC's Continuing Education program, although only beginning its second full year as a fully developed on-going division at the college will offer more than 50 credit-free courses this September, Ferrill said.

"One of the special features of the Continuing Ecucation program which TJC has developed is that new courses are organized as the need arises with courses starting many times during the school year." he said. Therefore, a person who has recently completed one six-week or eight-week course can often enter another course immediately, Ferrill explained.

The more than 50 continuing education courses offered at TJC include everything from Basic Income Tax Preparation to Family Recreational Swimming, with any course requested by ten or more persons offered as soon as TJC can get it organized, he said.

Registration fees for TJC's continuing education courses are modest, Ferrill said. Most courses cost about 50¢ per hour of instruction; watercolor lessons, for example, cost $16 for 24 class hours or 65¢ per hour of instruction, he said.

The philosophy of a fully-developed continuing education program is a relatively new one, Ferrill explained. "Continuing Education is the term applied to post-secondary classes, credit or credit-free, specifically provided for adult citizens who desire to improve the vocational, professional cultural, or social learning beyond their present level of education," he said.

Among the courses scheduled to be offered in September and October are the following, divided into broad categories:

Arts and Crafts: Watercoloring; jewelry making; artistic anatony; Drawing Techniques in Pen, Ink, Pencil, Pastels.

Business and Office Occupations: Sales Training; Office Practice: Pension and Profit Sharing Plans, Income Tax; Banking.

White said that Fuchs was elected to these posts at the annual meeting of Texas poultrymen in Dallas.

About Time, About Life....

There are no window bars to saw out of in the new Milam County Jail, which now is getting the steel walls and interior fixtures of a modern jail.

Even while this construction is underway, a couple of inmates sawed through an outside bar in the old jail and escaped.

Last time, one of the escapees tried to fly and nearly killed himself landing in a tree or large shrub.

The new jail has vertical slit windows for sunlight, too narrow for all but a circus thin man to pass through.

Your Herald has reported so many breaks over the past 15 years from the old jail we are somehow criticised for telling of its inadequacy.

One of these recent escapees is charged with assault with intent to murder, the other was awaiting transfer to Bell County authorities.

Now who is kidding whom? We are lucky one of these escapees hasn't picked up a hostage right here in Cameron over the years and dumped a hapless victim in some ditch or shallow grave along the escape route.

We're glad to see this new jail about completed. It's about time and possibly about saving some innocent person's life.

The Bits and Pieces...

Yep! It's back to school.

No more crawdadding, skinnydipping, sandlot baseball, "popping" too many Willies, and all the other things that make summer life worthwhile.

No more (or less) sunbathing, four-barrell dragging, Watergating and whatever else the summer meant to kids on vacation.

Football, classes to mid-afternoon, band performances and back-to-school geegaw are in form.

It's time of year when things go mad a little more on schedule, before and after school, before and after games, before and after dates, before and after meals...

Thanks, school people, for restoring order to the bits and pieces of our lives...

Reform can be revolutionary or evolutionary. It is NOW's opinion that time had eroded political entrenchment, stereotypes and confidence in the caboodle, from city hall to White House.

If an aggressive, sometime hostile press had not broken things open, some would have collapsed of inertia out of anachronism.

This press backgrounding is important in light of events in Washington, of a parade of vice-presidents--Nixon, Agnew, Ford and now Rockefeller--making the start upon appointment by a predecessor.

It comes after witnessing how a governmental crisis proves the strength of constitutional law, written by a handful of colonial geniuses and patriots two centuries ago.

It comes remembering the first amendment to that constitutional triumph was guaranteeing freedom of the press.

The press of Texas will play a role in bringing about a better constitution for this state, easily a more concise one, and getting a modern educational system with equity in open, competent government. State and local can do no worse and easily better than central government pre-Watergate.

If there is anything uniquely American about this country's European institutions, it is the American system of voting, of checks and balances, of constitutional law assuring continuity.

And if there is anything uniquely American about its press, it is we are willing to run the news, regardless of what we say on the editorial page.

Competent politicians appreciate it. Weak politicians fear and hate it.

Memorials Open For Heart Fund

The American Heart Association, Milam County Division, has a memorial fund to which families and friends of victims of cardiovascular diseases may contribute.

Contributions made in memory of a friend or loved one are acknowledged by the Association, and a memorial card is sent to the family stating that a memorial has been made and giving the name of the donor. These contributions may be in any amount.

More deaths result from heart diseases than all other causes combined, but gains in heart research have been significant in recent years. Rheumatic fever is yielding to drug therapy, and advanced surgery techniques are enabling patients to live normal, healthy lives. Some of the most dramatic developments have been made in research centers in Texas.

Memorial funds are received throughout the year and added to the Association's Annual Heart Fund receipts.

Memorials should be sent to the American Heart Association Memorial Program, Milam County Division, Mrs. Betty Humble, 902 E. 7th, Cameron, TX 76520.

Vietnam War Posing New Problems

By David Laulicht

Reuter--The shape of the war has changed in South Vietnam, posing new problems for both sides as they battle on 18 months after the Paris peace agreement.

Seen from Saigon, the government army faces critical tests in adapting to prospective American aid ceilings and a worsening economic squeeze, while trying to maintain morale and change tactics.

The army has fought better than most foreigners expected since the American troop withdrawal, and--according to western experts here--better than it did when the Americans were here.

But it faces growing problems, with its soldiers worried by their families' economic troubles and under orders to learn to fight without relying on the unlimited shells and bombs that came from the American cornucopia.

The other side also has some problems of morale and tactics, according to western intelligence sources, largely stemming from the replacement of local Viet Cong fighters by North Vietnamese regulars in many areas.

This , say western and government analysts, became inevitable with the heavy losses suffered by the Viet Cong over the years.

But there is no sign of any let-up in the determination of the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese, and western military analysts say their supply and transport positions give them the capacity to increase the pressure when they choose and keep it on.

Rumors of negotiation still abound in Saigon, but the sounds of war are louder. And even the prospect of any new effort of negotiation or of political developments is always related to judgments of each side's ability to endure in the battlefield.

President Nguyen Van Thieu has spelled out some of his basic concerns publicly, calling on his troops to practice Vietnamese tactics of economy, and demanding to know how much aid he could expect from the United States.

The prospect that the current year's military aid will be limited to about one billion dollars seems to be gaining acceptance here. While the figure still seems high compared with any amount that could otherwise be available here, it is seen in relation to the way the war was fought in the past.

Western military experts sympathetic to the government stress that the sum buys a lot less this year than last. Gasoline and related fuels have doubled in price, and ammunition has gone up by 24 per cent in a year, they say.

But efforts at economy have run upon snags in practice--partly because the other side is able to face government commanders with dilemmas that seem to require all-out efforts.

Air strikes, heavy artillery bombardments and armor are still called in when they seem crucial, though field officers say they get less such support now in routine operations than in the past.

One knowledgeable source estimates that the government still has ten shells for every one the communists have, as well as complete mastery of the skies and far greater mobility.

But western intelligence reports emphasize the great improvement in the communist transport network, and the quantity of sophisticated weapons that have been moved down it from the north.

These include anti-aircraft missles, long - range artillery and armor. Communist use of armor has still been relatively sparing, though a considerable psychological impact was achieved when about 20 communist tanks were reported used in fighting some 25 miles from Saigon this spring.

A key factor in western intelligence estimates is the communist logistic and transport system, which is said to have cut the time it takes to move men from North Vietnam into combat from months to well under three weeks.

Scientists Seek Loch Monster

By Peter Mosley

Reuter-British author and naturalist Gerald Durrell has thrown the weight of his international reputation behind a call for an all-out effort to track down the Loch Ness Monster.

Durrell, author of the best selling "My Family and Other Animals," makes the plea in his introduction to "The Loch Ness Story," latest addition to what amounts a whole library of books about "Nessie,"

"It seems incredible," he says, "that all the research to date has had to be done virtually on a shoestring by dedicated amateurs."

Backing, when it comes, is usually from America or other foreign sources, while "the disbelieving ranks of British Science" look on petulantly.

Durrell hopes that this latest book will prod British authorities into providing financial support for an all-out effort to find out exactly what does exist in Loch Ness. First, though, a law must be passed affording complete protection for whatever it is that lurks in the lake.

The new book, by Nicholas Witchell, is essentially a review of all the evidence that has accumulated since the day in 565 when Saint Columba reported encountering a "water monster" in Loch Ness.

Witchell believes that despite the sometimes half-baked attempts to track and identify the "monster," science is at last homing in on it. Most of the evidence suggests that Nessie is, in fact, a type of plesiosaur, a marine dinosaur thought to have been extinct for millions of years.

And there is almost certainly a whole family of them in the Loch, says Witchell.

Some of the most exciting evidence is emerging from a continuing research program, using sonar equipment and underwater photography, mounted by the Academy of Applied Science, of Belmont, Massachusetts.

Photographs they took in 1972 clearly showed what appears to be the flipper of some giant creature gliding past the camera.

The Academy's 1973 search was thought to have been a washout. But in a "stop press" section to his book, Witchell reports that examination of the sonar charts shows that on 12 occasions a large, moving object ventured into the sonar beam.

This should have triggered the underwater camera. But the camera failed to operate-- it is thought the intense cold of the water congealed oil in the equipment.

The Academy is planning a much more sophisticated attempt with better equipment.

TJC Offers Wide Variety Of Clubs, Organizations

New and returning Temple Junior College students have an opportunity to join a variety of clubs and organizations, Dr. Walter H. Paul, Jr., Dean of Student Services, said.

Six clubs will be open to membership this fall semester and include the Business Administration Club, Circle K Club, Language Club, Science Club, Social Science Club and Spoken Arts Club. Four of these -- Business Administration, Language Science, and Social Science- are designed for students with those particular interests either vocationally or avocationally, Dr. Paul said.

The Circle K Club is a service organization co-sponsored by TJC and the Temple Kiwanis Club. Its membership is now open to women as well as men. The Spoken Arts Club is for students interested in forensics competition. Its members prepare for performance and competition in the areas of extemporaneous speaking persuasive speaking, prose and poetry interpretation, solo and duet acting, and debate, Dr. Paul explianed. Other clubs may be formed as the students express interest in them.

TJC has three fraternities on campus -- Alpha Mu Gamma, Delta Psi Omega, and Phi Theta Kappa.

Alpha Mu Gamma is the national collegiate foreign-language honor society and is open to outstanding students who are enrolled in, or have completed, a third or higher semester of college study of any foreign language.

Delta Psi Omega is a national honorary dramatic fraternity. Phi Theta Kappa is a national junior college honorary scholastic society open to students who have completed fifteen semester hours at TJC and rank academically within the upper ten per cent of the student body, he said.

Three student campus publications are available and include the Templar, the TJC yearbook; Leopard Tales, the student newspaper; and the Collage, a publication sponsored annyally by the Fine Arts Committee of TJC. The Templar is published annually by members of the student body and is open to any student. The Leopard Tales is published bi-weekly and also is open to any student interested in working on the student newspaper, Dr. Paul said.

Four religious organizations are open to new and returning students at TJC, Dr. Paul said. The Baptist Student Union (BSU) was the first religious organization affiliated with TJC. It provides weekly study and worship programs. The Church of Christ Student Fellowship is open to all students interested in the study and practice of the Christian faith. The Newman Club is designed to meet the spitiual, intellectual and social interests of the Catholic students and all other students at TJC interested in Catholicism, he explianed. The United Methodist Student Fellowship was organized to study the basic religion, beliefs and tenets through speakers, group study and discussion.

The College Players, Rodeo Association, and Texas Student Education Association (TSEA) are three special interest student groups on the TJC campus, Dr. Paul said.

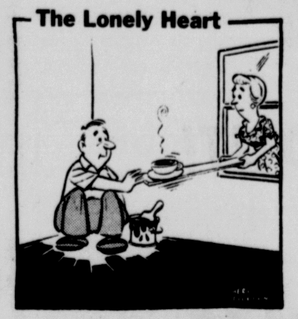
The Lonely Heart



Weekly Market Report

Although prices are up, eggs should be high on "budget - minded" lists, Mrs. Gwendolyne Clayatt said this week.

The consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, listed ground beef, pot roasts, picnics, luncheon meats, franks and liver as "good stand-bys" for menus during days ahead.

Admitting uncertainty in predicting meat prices, she said upcoming weeks promise higher prices and fewer specials.

"Look for best values on chuck roasts and steaks, round steaks and roasts, and ground beef.

"Pork values will be picnics, hams, shoulder roasts and steaks, and pork liver.

"Fryers continue as one of the more popular summer cookout items, and turkeys are still economical."

At produce counters, Mrs. Clyatt reported watermelon and cantaloupe among current best buys--"they're abundant and show good quality."

Other economical vegetables include cabbage, carrots, red potatoes, dry yellow onions, squash, radishes, green onions, okra and purplehull peas.

Fruits in good supply at the most economical prices are nectarines, plums of several varieties, bananas, grapes and pears.

CONSUMER WATCH-WORDS: Ice cream is a boon to summer menus. Between meals, this tempting frozen dessert can supply small fry with varied snacks and extra milk nutrients--don't forget cones to make the treat "portable."

Kubiak Raps Briscoe Decision

Inflation has hit schools in the state with the net result that the local school district's share for paying for education is up to 48 per cent-more than double what the share originally was, Rep. Dan Kubiak stated this week.

He said in his weekly newsletter that with Gov. Briscoe's decision not to call a special session of the Legislature for emergency school funding, schools "are backed up against the ledge of financial disaster,"

"In short," Kubiak said, "many school districts are finding it almore impossible to balance their budgets. Unlike an individual, schools may not 'borrow' funds based on expectations of incoming funds the next year."

Kubiak noted that when the present education financing system was set up 25 years ago, the state paid 80 per cent and the local school district 20 percent of the school costs.

"But today that is not the case because school districts must spend their local funds to build and furnish buildings. State funds can go only for teacher salaries, transportation and the like.

"The rub has been caused by the horrendous inflation that has mainly increased the price of things for which the local districts must pay," he said.

These things include maintenance of buildings, gasoline (the price has doubled in less than two years), soaring utility rates, additional insurance coverages and many more.

Kubiak said the state, with more than $500 million surplus in the treasury, could step in and grant schools more funds. "But Gov. Briscoe has abdicated that responsibility to the local residents acress Texas," Kubiak said.

"That leaves only one course of action-the school district must turn to the local tax base and raise the rates of local taxes.

"I assure you it is happening and is more likely than ever, in light of the Governor's decision, that this new 'Briscoe Tax' will be paid by you, the citizens and taxpayers," he said.

First Steps Into Big World

By Chris Holcombe
Co. Et. Agent

When the new school year begins, many children will take their first steps alone into a big world. They'll be away from home and parents for the first time.

Some kindergartners and first graders may arrive physically for their first school experience, but their hearts, minds and feelings are still at home.

The reluctance to separate himself emotionally from home and parents--especially from mothers--is a typical feeling for many 5- and 6-year-olds. Mastering this separation experience is a necessary step in the growing-up process for all boys and girls.

It is important for parents to recognize the difference between separation feelings and separation problems or symptoms. Most children experience separation feelings.

Usual feelings about separation normally expressed by young children are sadness, fear and anger. The child may feel sad and not know why. He may be fearful of being with people he does not know well. He may feel angry at his mother for letting him go to school, leaving him and exposing him to a new-and perhaps unpleasant world.

Some children express directly their concern about being separated from parents. They talk about their feelings, cry, or invent reasons for not going to school.

Other children express their concerns indirectly. Sometimes dawdling, temper tantrums or night sleep problems are symptoms of concern over being separated from a parent during the first school experience.

Although the problems relate to school, often the symptoms come at home.

The two most common defenses a young child adopts are absenting himself feeling-wise-denying his feelings-and the pretense of over-involvement at school to show the parent that she isn't needed.

Alert parents can overcome these defenses and make the first separation experience a beginning step in achieving a healthy balance of dependence and independence.

YOE tri-captains Brian Cobb, Willie Bell and Bruce Zarosky.

30-Man Varsity Averages 172 Lbs. For '74 Yoemen

A 30-man Yoeman varsity weighs in at 172 pounds average for 13 seniors, 14 juniors and three sophomores, according to the 1974 roster.

The Yoemen are rated second behind a nifty Hearne club for the 23AA championship, newly created with the Eagles and Yoemen dropping back from AAA ranks for the past two years.

Coach Ed Cauley lists four quarterbacks, six halfbacks, and three fullbacks trying for a starting assignment, either offense or defense.

Seventeen other candidates are out for lineslots, including four for center, five for tackle, four for guard, and two each for split end and tight end.

Tightend Ronnie Bennett, the 6-8 junior basketball center, returns while Harry Brooks, about 6-5 and a senior, is listed at tackle. Both are 200 pounds or more.

Randy Sapp and Jeff Smitherman return as senior quarterbacks joined by juniors Kenneth and Joe Mondrik, weight ranging from 145 for Sapp to 170 pounds for Mondrik.

Halfbacks include speedsters Willie Bell at 180, Jafus White at 175, juniors Stanley Manners and Dennis Hollas and seniors Gary Trdy and Troy Daniels.

Fullback candidates include seniors Gene Kopriva and Bruce Zarosky, both 170, and sophomore Brian Wilkinson, the 6-3, 210 pound sophomore.

Tri-captain Brian Cobb is joined at center by Ricky Hollas, Mark Fritz and Mark Harwell. Bell and Zarosky also are tri-captains.

Guard candidates are Don Hanel and Ricky Kelley, both at 160, and Frank Tena and Mike Mueck, the all-district 190 pounder last year. He is a senior.

Tackles include Brooks, David Fincher and Joe Smitherman, both over 200-pounds juniors, Jimmy Kohutec, a 185-pound junior, and Kelvin Kelly, a 230 - pound sophomore.

At splitend, Mike White, a 145-pound junior and Greg Kelley, a 125-pound sophomore and smallest man on the squad, are listed.

Tightend candidates are Gary Hornung, a 165-pound senior, and Bennett.

The starting interior line will weight about 190 pounds if Cauley's defense employs both Bennett and Brooks, Muech, Cobb, and one or two other 200 pounders on the roster.

Forsythe Notes 22-Man Squad Working For JV

A junior varsity has not been released.

Apply For Jobs, Vets Advised

"Apply for a job immediately at your local state employment service office," the Veterans Administration advises veterans recently separated from military service.

Jack Coker, VA Regional Office Director, noted the Department of Labor has primary responsibility for jobs, and gives priority to veterans. State employment service offices refer veterans to available jobs, or allow them to apply for unemployment compensation, Coker said.

Unemployment compensation, designed to assist the unemployed for a limited period during job-seeking time, varies from state to state. Most benefits are in the $49 to $138 weekly range, and run from a few to a maximum of about 39 weeks. A few states pay additional allowances to veterans with dependents.

To be eligible, a veteran must have been separated under conditions other than dishonorable after at least 90 days of continuous service unless separated earlier because of a service connected disability. An officer must not have been separated for good of the service to qualify.

Coker urged veterans seeking jobs or interested in unemployment compensation to take along their DD Form 214 when they apply at local offices of the state employment service.
